Notice and service records

Different documents. Different dates. Different events.

What this reader contains

Page 2: one supplied scan of the November 10, 2025 notice demanding $27,205.28 and payment or departure within three days of service. The second supplied scan carries the same printed date and substantive demand; the filenames alone do not establish posting dates.

Lawsuit service is a separate event

Pages 3-5: complete three-page return describing November 25 service through ABC's registered agent, including the receipt page. Pages 6-7: complete two-page return describing November 25 service at the home. Both returns were signed November 26 and filed December 5, 2025, in case 25-2-13363-5.

The limits matter

The returns identify the summons, complaint, case schedule and cover sheet. They do not certify service of the earlier cure notice or prove three consecutive days of door/window postings. The home return includes the server's account of employee refusal and dropping packets at her feet; that account is retained.

Read the complaint separately

The November 24 complaint, paragraphs 13-14 (existing public reader p. 4), identifies November 14 as the notice date and alleges affixing a notice in two conspicuous places. It is the plaintiffs' allegation, not an independently verified posting log or a finding that service was lawful.

Privacy and source treatment

These are source-page facsimiles with privacy redactions, not recreated notices. Street addresses, unrelated contact details, individual recipient and server identifiers, signatures and selected location identifiers are removed. Material dates, amounts, service descriptions and unfavorable context remain. Originals are preserved privately.

Outcome

The property dispute ended through negotiated settlement and dismissals. This reader does not establish an adjudicated debt, an executed eviction or a merits finding of wrongdoing.

Public copy: attorney names and firm identification redacted.
